

What is a museum?

A museum is a place where we keep important things about art, history and science. Sometimes people give important things to a museum so everyone can come see it. The people who work at museums take care of the things that belong there so they will be there for a long, long time.

Some things at the museum are there always, and some things are part of a group of things that move from one museum to another, so people in many cities can see them. Traveling exhibits are usually in a museum for a short time, then they go away to another museum in another city, and another traveling exhibit comes to the Museum of Fine Arts.
